What makes Mary Ann Liebert titles special?

Mary Ann Liebert has a long-standing reputation for pioneering journals in many new and emerging areas of science and medicine. We were the first publisher to launch journals focused on AIDS research and in groundbreaking fields in biotechnology such as CRISPR. Today, our titles rank among the highest in areas like diabetes, autism in adulthood, and emergency medicine, always with the mission to advance knowledge and improve outcomes for humanity.

What has changed?

Until now, libraries could only purchase Liebert journals individually, often missing access to the full spectrum of high-impact research we publish. As part of our integration with Sage, the world's largest independent academic publisher, we have worked together to bring you the complete Liebert offering in one robust package that will represent real value for you. Sage brings over 60 years of experience delivering value-for-money packages, along with tailored benefits such as full customer support and training. We can now provide institutions with the entire Liebert portfolio for the first time – a new, complete way to access the research you've been asking for.

High impact titles

With the full portfolio, you can now add, and easily renew, all these high impact science and medical titles at your library in one step.

The portfolio of 104 titles includes 11 journals ranked in the top 20 of their categories, including Autism in Adulthood, Journal of Women's Health, and Advances in Wound Care, with 80% of the portfolio ranked in the JCR.
